didn't think of.

We are CPCS.

A global management consulting firm.
Advisors to infrastructure leaders.

Our Young Professionals Program is for new masters-level graduates and entry-level professionals with 1 to 3 years of experience looking to make an impact right away.

“Climate change is real, and cities are growing rapidly. It’s a great time to be part of CPCS.”

Boer Cui

Consultant, Infrastructure Analytics
(YPP graduate)

“If you’re up for a challenge, we’ve got plenty to solve, like congested roads, ageing ports, poor access to electricity, inadequate access to financing and more.”

Cynthia Antypa

Consultant, Anglophone and Lusophone Africa
(YPP graduate)

“This program is a great way to enter the infrastructure consulting world and get hands-on training and guidance from CPCS’s multidisciplinary team of specialists.”

Ramata Ba

Consultant, Francophone Africa – West
(YPP graduate)

Global projects. Real responsibilities. High-impact work.

“ The equity evaluation framework I’m working on for TransLink, the transportation agency for Metro Vancouver, is meaningful in my opinion. It brings into question who should benefit from having access to good transportation services, which isn’t straightforward and hasn’t been the focus of decision makers in the past.”

Boer Cui

Consultant, Infrastructure Analytics
(program graduate)

“ My very first infrastructure project at CPCS exposed me to the important factors that play a role in mitigating climate change. It was the first of many projects that allowed me to deepen my knowledge in a specific subject.”

Cynthia Antypa

Consultant, Anglophone and Lusophone Africa
(program graduate)

“ Right now I’m helping to develop new transit infrastructure in Toronto, which is going through major growth. It’s amazing to think that I had a hand in these projects which will be the new backbone of the city as it continues to grow.”

John Kurman

Consultant, US
(program graduate)

Becoming a management consultant.

Interested in finding solutions to tough infrastructure challenges?

You'll catch our attention if you have a background in economics, management, finance, law, data science, engineering, urban planning or other disciplines relevant to our field.

Global expertise

CPCS is a global management consulting firm headquartered in Canada. We provide strategic advisory services specific to transportation and power infrastructure, operations, investment, policy and regulation.

We also specialize in mobilizing private investment for public infrastructure through public-private partnerships and transaction advisory services.

The clients we partner with include all levels of government, private sector investors and infrastructure owners, bilateral and multilateral agencies, as well as international financial institutions such as the World Bank.

What you'll do with us:

Learn

the ins and outs of business development.

Lead

all aspects of strategic, economic and financial analyses for infrastructure projects specific to transport, power and public-private partnerships.

Consult

with a wide range of stakeholders, present the findings in high-level meetings across the world.

Work

with teammates to identify data-driven and impactful solutions to tough infrastructure issues.

Your path at CPCS

1 You'll join our central consulting team, be trained and do hands-on work to support business development and project activities across our areas of expertise and markets.

2 Successful individuals graduating from our program move to a specialized team that meets their career development goals and business priorities.

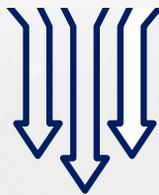

Close to 1,500 projects completed in more than 110 countries.

We specialize in the market in the middle.

Engineering and planning firms

They have technical depth but are weaker in management consulting services.

Large accounting and management consulting firms

They have experience in management consulting services but lack technical depth.
